Changing Compensation Costs in the Los Angeles Metropolitan Area: September 2008

Total compensation costs for private industry workers increased 2.5 percent in the Los Angeles-Long Beach-Riverside, Calif. metropolitan area for the year ended September 2008, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor. Regional Commissioner Richard J. Holden, noted that one year ago, Los Angeles experienced an annual gain of 2.3 percent in total compensation costs. Locally, wages and salaries, the largest component of total compensation costs, advanced at a slower 2.1-percent pace from September 2007 to September 2008. Nationwide, total compensation costs rose 2.8 percent and wages and salaries, 2.9 percent over the same 12-month period. (See chart A and table 1.)

Chart A. Twelve-month percent changes in the Employment Cost Index for total compensation and for wages and salaries, private industry workers, United States and the Los Angeles area, not seasonally adjusted, December 2006 to September 2008

The "Employment Cost Index for the Regions" news releases have been discontinued. However, the estimates that appeared in those releases are available in table 6 (www.bls.gov/news.release/eci.t06.htm) and table 10 (www.bls.gov/news.release/eci.t10.htm) of the "Employment Cost Index" news release issued by the BLS National Office. Historical estimates for these series can be found at www.bls.gov/ncs/ect/regionaleci.htm.

Los Angeles is 1 of 14 metropolitan areas in the United States, and 1 of 3 areas in the West region of the country, for which locality compensation cost data are now available. Among these 14 largest areas, Philadelphia registered the highest percent change in both total compensation costs and wages and salaries from September 2007 to September 2008. Over-the-year growth rates in the cost of total compensation ranged from 4.6 percent in Philadelphia to 1.8 percent in Detroit in September 2008. For wages and salaries, annual advances ranged from 4.7 percent in Philadelphia to 1.9 percent in Detroit. (See chart B.)

The annual increase of 2.5 percent in total compensation costs for Los Angeles in September 2008, compared to gains of 3.5 and 4.5 percent, respectively, in San Francisco and Phoenix, the other two metropolitan areas in the West. Los Angeles' 2.1-percent gain in wages and salaries over this 12-month period compared to advances of 3.2 percent in San Francisco and 4.4 percent in Phoenix. (See table 2.)

Locality compensation costs are part of the national Employment Cost Index (ECI) which measures quarterly changes in total compensation costs, which include wages, salaries and employer costs for employee benefits. In addition to the 14 locality estimates provided in this release, ECI data for the nation, 4 geographical regions, and 9 geographical divisions are available. (Geographical definitions for the metropolitan areas mentioned in this release are included in the Technical Note.)

Chart B. Percent change in the Employment Cost Index for total compensation and for wages and salaries, private industry workers, United States and localities, not seasonally adjusted, September 2007 to September 2008

In addition to the geographic data, a comprehensive national report is available that provides data by industry, occupational group, and union status, as well as for both private, and state and local government employees. The report on the Employment Cost Index and further technical information may be obtained from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Western Regional Office by calling 415-625-2270. The report is also available on the Internet at <http://www.bls.gov/news.release/eci.toc.htm>. Current and historical information from other Bureau programs may be accessed via our regional homepage at www.bls.gov/ro9/. The ECI for December 2008 will be released on Friday, January 20, 2009 at 8:30 a.m. (ET). Information from the Employment Cost Index program is available to sensory impaired individuals upon request. Voice phone: 202-691-5200, Federal Relay Services: 1-800-877-8339.

Technical Note

The Employment Cost Index (ECI) is a measure of the change in the cost of labor, free from the influence of employment shifts among occupations and industries. The total compensation series includes changes in wages and salaries and employer costs for employee benefits.

Wages and salaries are defined as straight-time average hourly earnings or, for workers not paid on an hourly basis, straight-time earnings divided by the corresponding hours. Straight-time wage and salary rates are total earnings before payroll deductions, excluding premium pay for overtime, work on weekends and holidays, and shift differentials. Production bonuses, incentive earnings, commission payments, and cost-of-living adjustments are included in straight-time earnings, whereas nonproduction bonuses (such as Christmas or year-end bonuses) are excluded. Also excluded are such items as payments-in-kind, free room and board, and tips.

Selection of areas

Based on available resources and the existing ECI sample, it was determined that estimates would be published for 14 metropolitan areas. Since the ECI sample sizes by area are directly related to area employment, the areas with the largest private industry employment as of the year 2000 were selected. For each of these areas, 12-month percent changes and associated standard errors were computed for the periods since December 2006.

The metropolitan area definitions of the 14 published localities are listed below.
